The Pledge of the Ethical Technologist

On my honor, I will try:
      to serve people and society,
      to create technology for important human needs,
      and to abide by this pledge as an ethical technologist.

I am:
      responsible for what I design and code.

I will do my best to be:
      inquisitive and not condescending,
      and ever-mindful of privacy and security.

I will:
      use and abide by technical standards,
      always strive to acquire and use data ethically, seek out and minimize bias I may introduce in my projects, and be accountable for the things I create in the world.
